Borders
Entry to Queensland is temporarily restricted by the Chief Health Officer under the Border Restrictions Direction, in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.
Entering Queensland is only permitted in accordance with the Border Restrictions Direction, which may require additional documentation, and a completed Queensland Border Declaration Pass.
A pass does not guarantee entry into Queensland as this is determined by an Emergency Officer at the border checkpoint in accordance with the current published public health directions of the Chief Health Officer.
Queensland border restrictions and COVID-19 Hotspots are constantly being reviewed. Changes could mean you are no longer eligible to enter Queensland or will be required to quarantine at your own expense.
To avoid disappointment please complete the Queensland Border Declaration Pass as close to your travel date as possible.
For more information, visit www.qld.gov.au/border-pass.

Remote community restricted areas
From midday 10 July 2020, there are no entry requirements, quarantine requirements and travel restrictions for Queensland’s remote Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.
The Chief Health Officer may decide to re-introduce restrictions if an outbreak of COVID-19 occurs in a community. Decisions will be made by the Chief Health Officer based on public health conditions for each community and in consultation with local leaders.

Ongoing review
Ongoing review of state-based restrictions will be undertaken based on levels of community transmission. This includes:
• density requirements, including consideration of moving from 4 to 2 square metres per person for all venues
• remaining restrictions on high-risk businesses and activities.
